How to get music lessons for your early years children with Lil' Fi on zoom

1. Subscribe, register and receive links for term

2. Have props ready a box of the percussion instruments, plus a sheet of lycra for interactive play that you will facilitate

3.

Get children ready for some fun fed watered toiletied. Make a regular music mat. Enjoy the music!

Music has the ability to strengthen the connection between the body and brain. Music enriches not only social and emotional learning but also helps children to express and improve communication skills, language skills, cognition and fundamental movement skills. Intentional teaching with music is perfect for redirecting transitions engaging neural stimulation of the brain and educates children with joy.

This is to verify that Lil' Fi - Fiona Claire Hunter-Espley, principal and presenter of daily music lessons. 9.30am on zoom has no visual or auditory contact from the children and centres who engage with the program.
It is a one-way platform, no children are seen or heard by the presenter, there is only written contact from the educators with children's first names only for the purposes of the children hearing their names being sung by Lil' Fi
E.g. hello Johnny, Jimmy and Hannah
The children send in drawings and paintings only for inclusion on "the wall of fame". No images of children are accepted
This gives children a sense of inclusion and belonging and appreciation.

Documentation is provided with the program to help you focus on what matters.

We do fortnightly themes with a different percussion instrument included in each theme.

An annual theme sheet, a holidays program and a fortnightly page is provided. Along with support material as the weeks unfold. All can be included in your documentation when you subscribe.

The whole program has been going successfully for 5 years and we've grown it into something really useful, practical and compliments the EYLF.

Here's some examples of the documentation you will receive below.
